Hi Scott -- I hope ODA will provide some information soon. I looked through my files and found these:

Time Table

March 16, 2006 -- Eugene Weekly article "The Pitchfork Rebellion"
<http://www.eugeneweekly.com/2006/03/16/coverstory.html>

March 23, 2006 -- Kaci Agle, Pesticide Analytical and Response Center (PARC) Coordinator, notified Linda Liu of this article by email, and Linda forwarded Kaci's email to PTU, Dave Powers, Alan Henning, and Michael Watson.

Kaci said to Linda, "PARC will coordinate a review of these concerns and claims of adverse health effects and environmental concerns."

April 6, 2006 -- PARC Board agencies had a conference call to discuss what each state agency had.

November 24, 2006 -- Commissioner Fleenor of Lane County wrote to Rose Kachadoorian, interim PARC Coordinator, and said "I have notified the citizens that the below meeting [PARC Board Meeting] has been scheduled, and recommend that they attend to determine if this board is the correct venue to air their grievances. . . "

March 12, 2007 -- Kachadoorian advised Commissioner Fleenor to tell the people to go to physicians for diagnosis and to inform Lane County Health Department of the physicians' examination results. Then Lane County Health Department will work with the Oregon Health Department (ODH).

August 1, 2007 -- Merlyn Hough, Executive Director of the Lane County Regional Air Protection Agency (LRAPA), attended the August 1, 2007 PARC Board Meeting, to discuss the Pitchfork Rebellion.

Dale Mitchell indicated during this PARC Board Meeting that ODA conducted a few investigations after the article came out in 2006. Cinzia Romali of Oregon Health Department also sent cancer cluster investigation packets to Commissioner Fleenor for people to submit documented illnesses, but Oregon Health Department has not received any packets back. Mitchell asked that LRAPA to send all complaints about effects of pesticides to either ODA or to PARC for investigation.

October 16, 2007, Judy Smith talked to Day Owen during his protest.

October 22, 2007 -- Kathleen Harvey, PARC Coordinator, told Linda Liu that ODA worked on Owen's complaint early this month. Owen's case was investigated by ODA and ODF.

November 8, 2007 -- ODA sent EPA R10 a map, showing application site and locations of Day Owen and Gee. There was also a conference call with Oregon Health Department staff, Oregon Department of Forestry staff, ODA, Scott, Chad, Mike Watson, Judy Smith, and Linda to discuss what each agency knew about Pitchfork Rebellion.

November 8, 2007 -- EPA had a phone conversation with Day Owen, Neila Parker (wife), Mia Gee (closest friend in the neighborhood)

June 17, 2009 -- Day Owen called EPA Region 10's Oregon Operations Office in Portland, expressing concerns related to the enforcement of FIFRA.

June 18, 2009 -- Linda asked for an update from ODA regarding activities related to Day Owen and learned that there were no new activities.

Please let me know if I could provide anything.
